

Lloyd D. Pedersen, Esquire

Lloyd is a native of Connecticut. He graduated Denison University in 1981 and attended the University of Connecticut School of law where he graduated in 1985. From 1985-1992, Lloyd joined Regnier, Taylor, Curran & Eddy as a litigation associate where his primary focus was civil and insurance defense litigation where he participated in all aspects of the civil trial process.

In 1992 Mr. Pedersen became one of four original members in the Hartford office of the nationally known firm, Morrison, Mahoney & Miller, LLC and was an associate until 1998 when he made partner. During his tenure, his focus expanded to include defense of complex personal injury claims, bad faith actions, commercial claims and insurance coverage issues.

Mr. Pedersen's role at the firm increasingly involved analysis of ISO PAP, BAP, HO and CGL coverage issues that involved 1) completed operations; 2) false pretense claims; 3) employment practice coverage and other policy provisions. Lloyd's expertise in regards to coverage opinions and reservations of rights and the litigation thereof can be found in the Connecticut Supreme Court decisions in Flint v. Universal Machine and Sybalsky v. Glens Falls Insurance Company.

In addition to the above, Mr. Pedersen lectures at client seminars on legislative and judicial developments in tort and insurance law. He is also pursuing CPCU designation and has successfully finished sections 1 and 6.

After leaving Morrison, Mahoney & Miller in early 2002, Mr. Pedersen was invited to join Litigation Alternatives, Inc. as a house affiliated neutral. Lloyd's invitation was made based on his potential to become a successful and effective hearing officer, based on his legal expertise and his "intelligent" use of the ADR process over the years.

Lloyd's personality and integrity along with a philosophy to "say what he'll do and do what he says," combined with his good humor and an emotional "balance," we do not often see, have led us to the conclusion that adding an Alternative Dispute Resolution component to his practice will be a successful endeavor. We are honored to be able to be associated with him.
